

Port St. George, May 17, 1923 (G.O. No. 235, Judicial (Police)).

20. 123.—The following note embodying the conclusions of a Committee appointed by Government to inquire into the prevalence of pilferage in industrial areas and to devise means to abate it and including the draft of a Bill which the Government, acting on the decision of the Committee, propose to introduce in the local Legislative Council is published for general information. Notice is hereby given that the said draft Bill will be taken into consideration on or after the 1st November 1923.

Any objections or suggestions which may be received in respect of the said draft Bill before the date specified will be considered by the Government.

NOTE

THEFTS IN INDUSTRIAL AREAS.

For over forty years the trading and manufacturing community has been liable to thefts in ports between godown and ship, thefts on railways in goods yards and on goods trains and thefts in workshops and other places where large bodies of workmen are employed near big centres.

2. The evil has grown steadily and has now reached dimensions which amount to a public scandal and have given rise to many complaints in the press and elsewhere.

3. The evil is common to all India and a year or two ago the Government of India were asked by the various local Governments to prepare a Bill for the whole of India and the whole case was gone into. While admitting the very serious evil, the Government of India ultimately decided that the introduction of legislation on the lines suggested was not practicable as an all-India measure, but gave to all local Governments liberty to introduce Bills in their Provincial Legislatures. The first in the field has been Burma where the thefts of rice and timber have been enormous. Their Bill is Burma Act II of 1922.

It provides that only in such local areas and only as regards such substances, products or articles, as the local Government may by notification direct, any person found in possession of, or conveying or offering for sale or pawn, such notified articles as there is reason to believe are stolen must explain how he came to be in possession of the articles, and on failing to satisfy the Magistrate, shall be liable to a fine of Rs. 100 or to imprisonment up to three months.

If the person so detected in possession of suspicious property declares that he received it from some other person or that he was employed to convey it, the Magistrate may summon such person and hold an inquiry and on conviction may fine such person up to Rs. 100 or imprison him up to three months.

Such trials can only be conducted by first-class Magistrates and the Police may arrest without warrant if the person suspected will not give a proper address or will not come to the station.

4. The difference between this special law and the existing law is that, whereas under the latter a person can be arrested in essentially the same way on suspicion of being in possession of stolen property and put before any Magistrate, under the new law he can only be put before a first-class Magistrate; but, whereas under the existing law the prosecution has to prove that the property found on him was stolen, by means of a witness who can identify the actual property as his, under the new law, if the property found on the suspect within the prescribed limits is notified property, the onus is on him to show where he got it from.

To an honest man there can be no difficulty, for the articles notified are only such as are dealt with wholesale or are in transit in the area notified. An innocent man would not be likely to have a small quantity of any such articles on his person in such an area, and, if he had, he would be able to say at once where he got it from.

5. It was represented to the Government by large bodies of influential opinion, both official and non-official, that similar legislation should be introduced in this Presidency. It was pointed out that the evils sought to be checked were extraordinarily rampant and constituted a menace to the public safety, a check on trade and a very serious impediment to the much-desired legislation to make railways and harbours responsible as bailies for goods entrusted to them.

6. As early as 1881 the thieving in ports induced Government to pass the Port Police Act of 1881 by which each boat was to carry a constable at the expense of the owner. This involved putting a very large measure of trust on the constable and the intimidation employed by the boat's crew, when well out to sea, rendered the Act useless.

7. Madras town protected itself by the Madras City Police Act, 1858, which has a section in it corresponding to the Burma Act, so far as seized capture in possession of suspected goods is concerned, but it has no provision for dealing with the receiver or the principal who employs persons to convey the stolen goods. However, this Act is not applicable to the malsud and it is in the malsud that thefts have become especially bad.

8. Same idea of the extent of the evil may be gathered from the Railway figures which were accepted as correct by the Indian Railway Police Committee. The compensation paid for goods stolen rose from 13 lakhs in 1910 to 70 lakhs in 1930. The figures are even worse for 1931 when the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway paid out Rs. 1,77,552 for thefts of goods carried at railway risk while the loss to owners whose goods were carried at their own risk is estimated at quite double this sum. In September 1932 alone this railway paid Rs. 17,107 as amount of thefts. The South Indian Railway admits even worse losses.

9. Another and a most serious aspect of the question is that many of the losses are by thefts from the truck and from the trains themselves and from the signal plant. The removal of steel keys from the truck constitutes a grave menace to the public and any of any moment result in another ghastly derailment such as recently occurred on the East India Railway; while the results that may be expected from tampering with the signal apparatus ought well to be considered by those who oppose all restrictions on the liberty of the subject, for the chances are that they or theirs might be the victims.

10. The figures of the harbours are even more startling. At Negapatnam one firm alone paid Rs. 5,50,000 for losses in nine years. Cuddalore, Tuticorin and Coimbatore are equally bad.

11. The big workshops of the Railways, the big mills near Madras and the big printing presses all report constant loss by thefts, none of which can be brought home to the offenders, even when faced with suspicious articles, because they cannot be identified as the positive property of the factory workshop or press.

12. The law as at present interpreted in this Presidency may be explained as follows:—

The detection of cases in which the guilt of the man arrested amounts to a moral certainty is not a matter that presents any great difficulty; but when the case comes into court it is quite another matter to secure a conviction. The High Court have ruled that theft cannot be presumed from mere possession in suspicious circumstances, the stolen goods must be identified and grain which is not in its original bags is an instance of property which is not identifiable. Common sense would indicate that evidence found in the past regarding or going away therefrom carrying paddy or rice or goods is an instance of possession of stolen property, but when such cases come into court, it is argued that—

(1) a man is innocent till he is found guilty,

(2) it is not so offence to carry paddy or goods, and

(3) the property is not identified by any man who claims to be the owner and it cannot, therefore, be proved to be stolen; and the result is that the accused is discharged. It is true that the common-sense view has had the support of certain distinguished lawyers. Thus in an English case Manton, J., said: "If a man go into the London Dock office, without any means of getting drunk, and come out of one of the cellars very drunk, wherein are a million gallons of wine, I think that would be reasonable evidence that he had stolen some of the wine in that cellar, though you could not prove that any wine was stolen, or any wine was mixed." But under the law as interpreted at present, unless the accused has been actually seen removing the seed from the bag or the wine from the cask, it is extraordinarily difficult to bring home his guilt. Even the fact that there is no bumper to the port limits, and that people cannot honestly come into possession of grain, oilseeds, etc., while remaining thieves is not regarded as sufficient proof. The result of these difficulties is that the police are discouraged from bringing cases into Court at all and thefts increase in numbers from the knowledge that they will go unpunished and even unnoticed.

So long as the view of the law explained above is held to be correct (as it is generally admitted to be at present) the only real remedy is an alteration of the law which will shift the burden of proof in certain circumstances from the prosecution to the accused.

13. Urged by the combined demands of Railways, Harbour Boards, the Director of Industries, and firms, and also realising the danger to public safety and to public morality if such thefts were allowed to continue unchecked, the Government of Madras appointed a committee consisting of the following members to enquire into the seriousness of the evil and, if necessary, to devise means to abate it and, if legislation was necessary, to devise a Bill that could be put before the Legislature:—

- (1) P. A. Coleridge, Esq., I.C.S., District and Sessions Judge, Chingleput (Chairman).
- (2) E. F. Thomas, Esq., c.i.e., I.C.S., Director of Industries.

- (22) G. Hoddling, Esq. (of the Coimbatore Company, Coimbatore) representing Coimbatore Port Conservancy Board.

14. After the opinions of all the bodies concerned had been obtained and circulated to the members of the Committee, the meeting took place in the Secretariat with Mr. P. A. Coleridge, District Judge of Chingleput, as Chairman. The issues from petty thefts that have been briefly enumerated above were put clearly before the Committee and it was made apparent that a very real evil existed and was increasing every day owing to the powerlessness of the law.

15. Suggestions for combating the evil were then discussed and an increase of Police specially recruited from pensioners was suggested. This, even if practicable, would only increase expenditure and would not secure convictions or deter thieves, for only if a thief was caught in the act could he be charged; and even then, the plea would be that it was Police evidence, and self-respecting pensioners would very soon tire of having their ward doubted merely because they were doing Police work.

Secondly, it was proposed that the headman who controls the coolies should be held responsible for the goods delivered to him and be made to give cash security. If he attempted to enforce the law against his coolies, he would either find himself without labour or in the Civil Courts. If he let things slide, he would merely square the tally clerk and things would be as before.

Thirdly, social work amongst the coolie classes was proposed. The innocent children who stand by and see their parents plying and so learn the habit were to be cared for in Baby Homes supported by a liberal grant from Government and as the evil would die out. The time would come, however, when the child would have to leave the Baby Home, and then the choice of honest hard work and dishonest easy plying would have to be made, and the choice can be safely prophesied.

Fourthly, it was suggested that, as in Australia, the Trades Unions should be relied on to weed out dishonest members or to put them on to jobs that give no opportunity for pilfering. It was admitted, however, by all alike that the Unions in India could not be relied on to undertake such a task, as the leaders had very little hold over the member, especially where it was a matter that seemed to be against the members' interests.

16. The only suggestion that remained was legislation, and, except for the representatives of the South India Chamber of Commerce, the Committee agreed that this course should be adopted.

17. The view of the South India Chamber of Commerce was (1) that the proposal to throw the onus of proving honest possession on the person in possession of suspicious goods to a proclaimed area was opposed to public policy, because it was for the benefit of certain classes; (2) that the difficulty in getting convictions was due to the complexity, in most cases, of the police with the offenders; and (3) that, by proper organization, the Port officer could prevent thefts in harbours, and similarly railways could prevent thefts in goods' sheds and yards, if their employees were honest, and much more so in factories where it was unthinkable that the employer should be protected by legislation against his dishonest employees.

18. These objections were exposed veridically before the Committee. Firstly, the protection sought was not designed to benefit the merchant and shipper and railway company but the general public, for, in proportion as thefts increased insurance and rail freight increased and merchants added a large percentage to their prices to cover loss. Further it was exceedingly bad for the public to allow petty theft to go unrecoginised and unpunished and no one's property would be safe unless it was of a clearly identifiable character.

Secondly, such legislation was not opposed to public policy, for the world over laws existed that curtailed the liberty of the subject and numerous Acts existed in this country and elsewhere which threw the onus of proving honest possession on the accused. Attention was invited to the Coffee Stealing Act, the Salt Act, the Akbari Act, the Forest Act, the Mysore Mines Act, the South African (Black Diamonds) Act, not to mention the fact that this very provision had existed in the Madras City Police Act, section 65, in the Calcutta Police Act, section 54-A, the Bombay City Police Act, section 83 and the Bangalore Police Act, section 31.

Some of these date back to 1836, and if they have not been found harmful but rather beneficial in the large cities to which they relate, why should not a similar Act be beneficial to the Presidency at large?

Thirdly, the reputation of the police seemed hardly warranted, for the police have made many efforts to get cases convicted, but have failed owing to the law being what it is. Further one of the suggestions made for improving matters was to recruit more police.

Fourthly, how a Port officer without a huge armed body and a fast launch could be expected to deal with the "bleeding" of bags and the transfer of booty to small hide-outs when out of reach of the shore—most dockyards being anything up to 8 miles out—was not explained, and the idea of holding contractors liable for their employees was not practical politics.

Though no doubt dishonesty existed in the subordinate staffs of all departments and all firms, this should not be a reason for refusing to assist with legislation to put down petty thieving.

19. The Committee then discussed the form of Legislation and it was resolved unanimously, the two dissenting members agreeing, that if the Legislature must be invoked the Burma Act was the best model; that with necessary modifications an Act on the lines of the Burma Act ought to be put before the Legislature.

20. The Conference has brought out the following facts:—

(1) It has removed any doubt that may have existed as to the extent and seriousness of the evil.

(2) It has proved that the Police as at present constituted are unable to deal with it.

(3) It has proved the difficulty of devising any practical alternative to legislation. The suggestion that the remedy lies in improving the efficiency of the Police, besides being difficult of realization, ignores the fact that, however efficient the Police were, it would not alter the difficulty of getting convictions in a Court of Law.

The growth of education will no doubt help in course of time, but cannot be regarded as an immediate remedy.

(4) It has brought out the most important fact that it is the public and not the merchants—i.e., the many and not the few—who will benefit by the suppression of these thefts, because the merchants can always protect themselves from loss at the expense of the public by raising the price of their goods to cover losses by pilferage.

(5) It has also emphasized the fact that from the moral point of view it is most desirable in the public interests that such thefts should be put a stop to.

(6) Finally it has challenged the position that special legislation would be resented by and would disturb labour.

The Government have accordingly prepared the following draft Bill which is now published for general information:—

A Bill to amend the Criminal Law in force in the Presidency of Madras.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Criminal law in force in the Presidency of Madras so as to deal more effectively with pilfering in industrial areas;

AND WHEREAS the previous sanction of the Governor-General has been obtained under sub-section (5) of section 90-A of the Government of India Act to the passing of this Act; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Madras Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932.

(2) It shall extend only to such local areas and apply only to such substances, products or articles as the Local Government may, by notification, direct.

2. (3) Whoever has in his possession, or conveys in any manner, or offers for sale or pawns, any substance, product or article which there is reason to believe has been stolen or fraudulently obtained, shall, if he fails to account satisfactorily for such possession or act, be liable to fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

(4) If any person charged under sub-section (1) declares that he received such substance, product or article from some other person, or that he was employed as a carrier, agent or servant to convey such substance, product or article for some other person, the Magistrate, after such further enquiry (if any) as he may deem necessary, may summon such other person, and any other person through whose possession such substance, product or article is alleged to have passed, to appear before him, and may examine such person and any witnesses who are produced to testify to each receipt, employment or possession; and, if it appears to the magistrate that any such person had possession of such substance, product or article and had reasonable cause to believe that it was stolen or fraudulently obtained, the magistrate may punish him with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

3. No magistrate other than a magistrate of the first class or a magistrate specially empowered by the local Government in this behalf may take cognizance of or try any offence under this Act.

4. (1) Any Police officer may arrest without a warrant any person who, he has reason to believe, is committing an offence under this Act if—

(a) he does not know the name and address of such person; and
(b) such person when requested to give his name and address, refuses or gives a name or address which he believes to be false or cannot ascertain to be true; and

(c) such person, when requested to accompany him to a police station, refuses to do so.

(2) No officer of Police below the rank of a sub-inspector may investigate any offence against this Act.

5. Any magistrate trying any case under this Act may permit the prosecution to be conducted by any Police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector.

NOTIFICATIONS

Port St. George, May 7, 1923 (G.O. No. 495, Finance).

No. 181.—The orders issued regarding the grant of casual leave are brought up to date and are shown in the annexes below:—

ANNEXURE.

I. ORDINARY CASUAL LEAVE.

Casual leave is not provided for in the Fundamental Rules and is a concession, to enable Government servants in special circumstances to be absent from duty for short periods without such absence being treated as leave under the Fundamental Rules.

2. No Government servant may in any case be absent on casual leave for more than fifteen days in the course of one calendar year. Nor may any single period of absence on casual leave exceed seven days. Casual leave may be cashed with Sundays or other authorized holidays provided that the resulting period of absence from duty does not exceed ten days. The fact that a retirement has been fixed for the amount of casual leave which may be taken within a year, does not mean that an officer is entitled to take the full amount of casual leave as a matter of course.

3. Heads of departments should estimate their intention of taking casual leave to Government in the department concerned.

4. A register of casual leave taken should be maintained in every office.

5. Members of works establishment may be granted casual leave on full pay or on reduced wages.

6. Menial servants paid from contingencies whose services are non-possessible may be granted such casual leave as would be given to private servants, the ordinary limits of ten or fifteen days not being applicable.

II. SPECIAL CASUAL LEAVE.

7. (a) Special casual leave not exceeding against ordinary casual leave may be granted to a Government servant in the following circumstances:—

(i) When he is detained in a plague camp or on the way to rejoice duty.

(ii) When he is directed by the head of the office to absent himself from duty in consequence of the presence of infectious disease in his house: provided that arrangements for conduct of his duties can be made without extra expense to Government or that the special sanction of the Local Government is obtained in cases in which a substitute is employed in the place of the absentee, without prejudice to his pay.

(iii) When the Government servant himself contracts the infection, register leave under the Fundamental Rules and is taken for the period of absence.

(iv) When he is summoned to serve as a juror or assessor or to give evidence before a court in British India or Foreign Territory as a witness in civil and criminal cases in which his private interests are not in issue: the leave to cover the total period of absence necessary.

(v) When he is deputed to another station for training, or when he is returning to his post after training, to cover the period required for joining the training centre or for returning thereafter to his post.

(vi) When he attends a camp of exercise or rifle meeting as a member of the territorial force with the permission of the head of his department or office, and when an officer of the Royal Naval Reserve serving under Government attends with the permission of the head of his department the annual fourteen days' training prescribed by the Royal Naval Reserve Regulations: the leave to cover the entire period of absence.

(vii) When he has to proceed for anti-rabies treatment at the Pasteur Institute, Cochin, or at the General Hospital, Madras, or at a leprosy hospital: casual leave up to one month may be granted provided no substitute is necessary.

(8) In the case coming under clause (i) to (vi) above when the absence does not exceed the period which may normally be treated as casual leave under the discipline rules in the head of the office, the Government servant may be granted for the entire period of absence such regular leave with leave salary as may be due to him and thereafter extraordinary should be treated as regular leave and debited to the leave account.

9. Casual leave cannot ordinarily be taken in combination with any leave recognized by the Fundamental Rules, with passing time, or with vacation. Heads of departments may, however, sanction such combination in special cases provided there is no evasion of the rules, for instance, when an officer charged to be absent owing to the prevalence of infectious disease in his house and placed on special casual leave, himself contracts the illness and has to be granted regular leave in continuation.

If a person is registered as an elector in the capacity of representative of a joint family or of a partnership or of a joint proprietor, the criterion of residence qualification for the purposes of registration as an elector will be whether the representative possesses the residential qualification in his personal capacity. ## FEE.

All students are required to reside in the hostel attached to the College, and to learn their work in one of the hostel messes. Every student, on joining the hostel, must deposit a sum of Rs. 25, the balance of which will be refunded when the student leaves. He must also pay a monthly fee of eight annas to cover expenses of management, etc.

On joining a mess, or on every occasion on which the mess advance has been adjusted to pay up annas, a registration fee of Rs. 1 is payable. A monthly sum of approximately Rs. 24 provides for food and incidental needs and two bath a day.

FEE.

No fees are charged for tuition or lodging for students from Madras or Coorg; students from other parts of India pay fees which can be ascertained on application.

Every student on joining the College shall deposit a sum of Rs. 5 (five rupees), to cover fees, bookkeeping, etc. Any balance in the credit of the student will be repaid at the close of the course.

A fee of Rs. 4 for the first term, Rs. 2 for the second term and Rs. 1 for the third term will be levied as a combined subscription to the Library Club and the Reading Room.

Students must provide themselves with their own books and sets of drawing instruments, but, as most of the instruction is given in lecture and field classes, the expense will be small. They must also, on joining the College, provide themselves with the uniform prescribed for games and ceremonial occasions, the total cost of which is about Rs. 25. This should not require renewing during their course. It is also desirable that they wear as far as possible the dress customary at the College for field work, which costs about Rs. 45.

GOVERNMENT SCHOOL OF COMMERCE, CALCUTTA.

School-year.—The school reopens on the 1st July 1933, after the summer vacation. The session begins every year in July and ends on 31st April. The first term is from July to November and the second term, a term January to April, the Christmas vacation extending for two weeks. The Government Technical Examinations in Commerce are held twice in the end of April every year, and the school closes immediately after in May, for two months for the summer vacation, and reopens in July, when the school year and the session for all the classes begin. Admission.—Admission is open only to such as have at least been students of the Fifth Form for a full year in a recognised high school. This is the minimum general education qualification necessary for admission into the school. Cost of fees.—Three rupees per subject per term, except for Typewriting, payable in three instalments of Rs. 1 each, in the months of July, August and September, and again in the months of January, February and March. The fee for Typewriting is Rs. 15 per term, payable in three instalments at Rs. 5 each. The same rate of fee is charged for each of the grades in a subject.

Subject and class.—Instruction is given in the following six commercial subjects and students are prepared for the Government Technical examinations in these subjects up to the highest grade in each:—

- |  |                                       |

Classes are held for the elementary grade, only in Bookbinder and Typewriting, the course for which is one year. In all other subjects, students are prepared for the intermediate grade at the end of the first year's course. The course for the intermediate grade in each of the six subjects is ordinarily one year, and it takes another year for the advanced course.

They should also furnish security in such a Governmental form as to the extent mentioned in the schedule within one week from the date of the acceptance of the tender being made known to them.

The supplies should begin from 1st July 1922 and be made for not more than that date. No advance of such will be made to the contractor. Payment of hire in respect of the accepted valves will be made on dates other than monthly as possible.
